

MODEL: CASELINE by Oormerk Studio

The Caseline storage system takes the panel door to the next level. Natural veneers and solid oak wood are used to create door that features a thin frame. The thin wooden borders create depth within the front panels. A push-open system locks and releases the doors. Behind it's doors the dresser provides practical storage, divided by height adjustable glass shelving.

Each Caseline dresser is supported by a slim steel base. All wooden parts are finished with a protective layer of hardwax.

Oormerk is a Dutch design office in the south of the Netherlands. The office is part of a modern workshop, where a wide range of products and designs are developed.

Oormerk is Dutch for an ear-tag, a label normally worn by cattle or livestock. Products that are designed by the Oormerk-designers are limited, unique and contemporary but most important they have their own identity, an Oormerk-identity.
